THE STRANGE FOLK BURIED IN WESTHINSTER ARBEY.

We are thinking of heroes to-det. In Westmineter Abbey, by the grave of David Livingstone, will take place this afternoon. the funeral service -- though not the buris -of the men who found him in the depths of Africa ; ingthe House of Commons this afternoon the Prime Minister will move that national monument be erected to the man who was Prime Minister of England longer than any other man for eighty yours. Sir Henry Stanley is not to lie, as her wished to lie, by the side of Lavingstone. England's great Walhalla is all but full.

But is it full of heroes ? There, in the shrine sacred to the memories of centuries of dimmortal men, in the shadow of the Houses of Parliament lies all that is left of the dust of the makers and builders of England, all that is mortal of the men and women whose lives fill the history books and works were the beginnings of a greatness nobler and vaster than they conceived.

Yet there, too, though we would forget it, lies the dust of those who worked for ill. It is a strange and startling company that would all the Abbey if its honoured and dishonoured dead could wake up in the 1876 night. The son of Charles Stuart would most the daughter of Comwell; William Pitt would be standing it might be, with a pugilist or aspy; Robert Browning would be in the company of a writer of diagraceful plays. Great and little, good and bad. FIRST-CLISS BOARDING, ESTAB. famous and infamous, meet at this shrine of immortalities. The shelter of the Abbey Splendid House, with every convenience, has not always been so jealously guarded as it to day, Here, in the holy quiet of the cloisters, is a monument to a prisecant, muitable for Syndicate or Private fighter ! Why it is here probably no man Concern, Present Proprietor leaving for knows-no man in the world knows why some of the people buried in the Abber should ever have been there.

John Broughton, if he had ever any title Hongkong, November 11, 1904. 2048 to a place at Westminster, has certainly not left it clear to his posterity. He was a. waterman, who lived through most of the eighteenth century, and revealed his bent for fighting by knocking his brother down. He knocked his brotter down so well that he left his boat to become a public bruiser, and his booth in Tottenbam courtroad was the resort of the elite of the bruise-loving firm bity. You would have found even royalty there, until one day when the Duke of Camberland backed him. for ten thousand pounds, and Broughton lost. The Duke never forgave him, and, though he had made his protege a Yeuman. of the Guard, he tooksway his patronage and left Broughton to grow rich slone at his theatre off Oxford-street. There he 2113 fought until he died, and was carried to his grave by five pugillets appointed by himself. He has a miche in fame as the latiter of prize fighting in England, and it is surely the strongest claim that any man has ever had for being hondered in the most sacred spot of English earth, among state> men and poets and kings. There would be room for all our great men in the Abbey if great men only had been buried there. The doors in centuries patrawers thrown open very wide. The Duke of Buckingham buried a Scotsman there for no other reason than that he washis triend, and on the luneral day, a dog was buried in Pothill Fields in public reficule. Thomas Parr, though he did not write poems and was not a poet, could advance, at any rate, one claim to lie in Puets' Corner. Was he not the cldes man alive? That is vesson enough, clearly, why he should lie where Shikespeate door not lies and it was reason enough in his day, it would appear. way be should lie among our kings

Parr, if the inscription in the Abbey speaks the truth, was low and lived under ten rules of England. He married again, it is said, at 122, and threshed com at 130. He began life as a farm servant in Shropthire, and would have died, no doubt, on his Shroubite farm if the Earl of Arundel had not unearthed him. brought him up to townsby stages. and presented him as a piece of intiquity to the King. What, affed Charles Stuart, have you, who have lived longer than other men, done more than other men? And Parrinformed the King that he had done penance in a white sheet with he was a numbed. Part was exhibited as a curiosity at a tavern in London until he died ward in 1835 the old, bld, very old man was buried inoets' Corner | He hatte perhaps, one other claim to the tonbertale flavours No. 54. The stage in olden times was more closely ullied to the Church than now. Thomas Botterton tottered off the Haymarket stage into a grave in Westminster Abbey. He was old and crippled with gout when he trembled through his last triumph before a home packed with great people, and in two weeks the same great people were gathered again in the Abbey to see the actor go dumbly through his last part. Here lies Mrs Bracegirdle, and here, too, Ann Old-·held, her rival for fame. Born in a tavern, she went on the stage almost beforeshe was in her teens, and she grew up a woman November, both days inclusive. with a great gift and no character. The roady Dean of the Abbey found her a place when she died, and Ann went to her grave as she would have gone to a play.

He came back one day when Peter was preaching, and, led by six bishops into the Abbey, be took his sent, banged his stick on the staff of the floor, and cried out: 'No more on that point, Peter' so insistently that Peter had to stop.

But the incongruities of the Abbey are endless, and we must break up our mixed assembly. Here and there, not to be counted on one or two hands, are graves of little children. The oldest inhabitant of the Abbey is (1) 152 years : the youngest is one day old. The little son of Henrietta Maria, the exiled Queen and Charles I., was born, christened, and baried in one day. Beside him lies his sister of four. The first child buried in the Abbey was dumb, the little on and after FRIDAY, 25th November, daughter, five years old, of Henry III. 1904, on Warrants to be obtained at the *Jane Lister, dear tilde,' is one of the touchingly simple inscriptions to be found the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, Shangin the cloistors. Nicholas died in 1688; he was two months old, and his heart was placed in an urn. Twen'y five years after, his mother came to the Abbey, never to leave it until the dead awake. There was a pathetic petition in her will. 'I desire,' said Lady Anne.Bagenall, 'that the heart that is in the um be thence taken out and put into my body with mine. Many strange things have been done in the Abbey, but it is not known to-day whether the heart of little Nicholas was taken from the wrn .- Home

DEPARTURES. MAIL STEAMER

The following table is a chronologically arranged list of mail steamer sailings to Europe, America, Canada, and Australia. Coast ports, Manila, and Japan are not given, for steamers are constantly sailing for those ports. All the American steamers call at Japan, and the majority of the Australian boats call at Manila, and, in addition to those vessels, special steamers run there. The departure of every steamer is subject to alteration. The P. & O. mails usually reach London in about 28 days, and the French and German in about 28 or 30 days.

DEFINITION OF CONTRABAND. The Case of the Prometheus. Judgment in Favour of the

At the Supreme Court this afternoon His arbitrator's hands. Lordship Sir H. S. Berkeley, Acting Chief Justice, delivered judgment in the case of will be guided by the answer the Osaka Shows. Kalsha postic swiners of to the questions given. the Prometheus The judgment was a dengthy one, and His Lordship took one hour and five minutes to deliver it. The case was one in which the Osaka Shosen Kaisha proceeded against the owners of the Prometheus for damages for a breach of a charter in refusing to carry provisions and timber, which the owners declared were contraband but which the charterers contended were not. The Osaka Shosen Kaishs chartered the Prometheus from Mossrs Sander, Wieler and Company, on behalf of the owners, for six months. Before the charter expired, a dispute arose which was submitted to arbitration. . The arbitrator, Mr E. A. Hewett, left three questions for the decision of the Court and was for this decision that the parties

The questions were:--(1) Whether under the terms of the Russian declaration the cargo intended for shipment from Yokohama and Kobe to Kagoshima, Okinawa, Keslung, Anping and Tokio by the Prometheus was contraband. If so, whether the Russian declaration in this respect is binding upon neutrals or whether it is ultra vires.

(2) Whether the line upon which the Osaka Shosan Kaisha wished to employ the Promethens was a 'privileged' line, and, if so, was it unlawful for neutral ships to engage in such a trade.

(3) Whether, in view of all the evidence brought forward, the Osaka Shosen Kaisha attempted to violate or alter the terms of the charter pirty as a whole, or purely with regard to Clause 37 by instructing the Captain to load food stuffs and timber and proceed to the ports mentioned. Mr E. H. Sharp, K.C. (instructed by

Dealing with the first question his Lordship decided that the expression contraband of war as used in the charter party must be given its primary meaning at the time of the signing of the charter, and not any particular reaning, favourable to either of the parties to the light of subsequent events. He could see nothing to justify the abolition of the primary menning of the words. Contraband of war was defined to be 'that which according to International Law cannot be supplied to a hostile belligerent excepting at the risk of seizure by the opposing bolligerent,' and it seemed to him to be a sound definition of the word, if while for the Ladies' Prize there are only God' shouted out Captain Whelpton; the water a few feet from our port bow. The meaning of the term was well known among the civilised nations of the world, for it is found used in the Treaty of Paris without a definition. The inference from that fact was that there was no definition needed, because the expression had a definite meaning in the minds of the plenipotentiories and powers parties to that agreement. Contraband of war was divided into two classes: Absolute contmand. being everything quoful for war only; Conditional contraband, being goods useful for warlike and peaceful purposes, which were contraband when destined for a warlike for the purposes of peace only were cillent reputation and it was popularly not contraband in any way. Under the Treaty of Paris Russia had agreed not to depart from the price pass of that Treaty and therefore was not allowed to declare provisions absolute contraband, and her decision in that respect could not street the

WIDNEY DISEASE, when it reaches the point of couning andden collapse, as in the case of Mr Mark Young, landlord the Victoria Hotel, Victoria street, Southwick, Sunderland, England, is nothing more or less than poisoning of the blood. The overworked kidneys fail to clear the blood, and the blood becomes impure. There is only one oure, and that is to clear out the poison by giving new blood to the veins. Dr Williams Pink Pills for Pale People have precisely this power. That is the secret of their cures. Whatever discases srise from too little blood, a blood FIELD & SWIEE. that lacks richness and purity, they can ours, just as surely as food cures hunger. Blood is the food of the hody : Dr. Williams' Pink Pilts are the food of the blood. The genuine pills always bear Dr Williams' name, substitutes are usless and frudulent. Dr Williams' Medicine Company, Holborn Viaduct, London, will send a bottle postfree for 2s. 9d. (or six bottles for 18s. 9d.) but they can be had at medicine shops provided purchasers inside (it is often necestary to insist) on having the genuine and on refusing any substitute. It is by making new blood that they cure ansemia, bile, consumption, decline, indigestion, St. Vitus' dance: it is by making pure blood that they cure rheumstiam, kidney disease, ecsema, and all skin troubles. They im- Wosang, for Shanghai. prove the appetite almost from the first dose, and they give strength to everyone.

Mr Young's case is a good example. 'I used to suffer from disease of the kidneys, he stated, and I was afraid I should never get well again. Cold shivering firs were H. M. Shepperd, F. G. Goetz, and 16 one of the symptoms. These used to come | Chinese. on so suddenly and unexpectedly that I Per Taming, from Manils, Mrs C. I slept badly every night, and Crombie, Dr Konig, Messre Toepper, I had to exercise the greatest care in my Rotshain, M. Russ, O. V. Lanning, O. choice of food. My illness was not ag-gravated by beer or spirits, as you might Parkes, J. W. Potter, V. H. Lanning think, for, although a publican, I am a Rouse, Beavis, Warre, Vaughan, H. strict teetotaller.
